Introduction

Dear Fellow New Yorker,

I want to take this opportunity to provide you with some important information on funding opportunities to support at-risk youth and gang prevention in our communities throughout New York State. Children and teenagers face a number of factors that can influence their participation in gangs, linking them to crime, drugs and leading to a higher likelihood of dropping out of school. With as many as 50,000 gang members in New York, at-risk youth need the opportunity to counter this behavior and remain on a path to a successful and healthy life. In an effort to support our youth, the federal and state governments have multiple programs that fund important gang prevention and at-risk youth initiatives across the state.

Finding the resources that meet your needs in the complex web of agencies can be an impossible task. For this reason, I have created this guidebook to serve as a starting point in providing information about what resources are available to individuals, businesses, community organizations and local governments. The information in this guidebook details energy program grants, loans, and tax credits. Its contents are by no means comprehensive and as new programs and opportunities emerge, its contents will be updated to provide New Yorkers with the most up-to-date information possible.

My Senate website (www.Gillibrand.senate.gov) is continually updated with critical information about various funding opportunities that are available to you, how to access them, and where to apply. You can also request hard copies of this guidebook, and other thematic funding guidebooks, by filling out the guidebook order form at the end of this guidebook and mailing it back to my New York City office or by emailing an electronic copy to grants@gillibrand.senate.gov. Furthermore, if you need assistance from a federal agency or with an immigration case, please refer to the casework form at the end or visit <http://gillibrand.senate.gov/services/casework/form/>. As you move forward with any grant opportunities, please contact Andrew Usyk, my Grants Director, for letters of support, when applicable. You can reach him in my Washington, D.C. Office at Grants@Gillibrand.Senate.gov, or (202)-224-4451.

Sincerely,

Kirsten E. Gillibrand
United States Senator

Federal Section I

United States Department of Justice

Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention

The Office of Justice Programs (OJP) provides innovative leadership to federal, state, local, and tribal justice systems, by disseminating state-of-the-art knowledge and practices across America, and providing grants for the implementation of these crime fighting strategies. Because most of the responsibility for crime control and prevention falls to law enforcement officers in states, cities, and neighborhoods, the federal government can be effective in these areas only to the extent that it can enter into partnerships with these officers.

Therefore, OJP does not directly carry out law enforcement and justice activities. Instead, OJP works in partnership with the justice community to identify the most pressing crime-related challenges confronting the justice system and to provide information, training, coordination, and innovative strategies and approaches for addressing these challenges.

1) Evaluations of Girls' Delinquency Program

- Juvenile delinquency prevention, intervention, and treatment programs have been customarily designed with boys in mind while little is known about how well girls respond to these interventions. While many states and communities design programs to prevent and treat female delinquency, little is known about whether these programs work as intended.

Additional Information:

- OJJDP intends to establish a Girls Delinquency Evaluation Advisory Board to provide guidance to the grantees who receive funding through this solicitation.
- The grantees should focus on the design, sample sizes to gain a better understanding of a group, measure behaviors and remark on measurements of sustained effects.

Eligibility:

- Applications are welcomed from public agencies, including state agencies, units of local government (including federally-recognized Indian tribal governments as determined by the Secretary of the Interior and published in the Federal Register), public universities and colleges (including tribal institutions of higher education), and private nonprofit and for-profit organizations (including faith-based, tribal, and community organizations).
- Joint applications from two or more eligible applicants are welcome; however, one applicant must be clearly indicated as the primary applicant (for correspondence, award, and management purposes) and the others indicated as co-applicants.

2) Community Prevention Program

- The Community Prevention Grants Program is a Federal grants program to fund collaborative, community-based delinquency prevention efforts. It integrates six fundamental principles—comprehensive and multidisciplinary approaches, research foundation for planning, community control and decision-making, leveraging of resources and systems, evaluation to monitor program progress and effectiveness, and a long-term perspective—that combine to form a strategic approach to reducing juvenile delinquency.

Additional Information

- The program provides communities with funding and a guiding framework for developing and implementing comprehensive juvenile delinquency prevention plans.
- The 3-year prevention plans are designed to reduce risk factors associated with juvenile delinquency and decrease the incidence of juvenile problem behavior.

Eligibility

- Units of local government (city, county, township, or other political subdivision) can apply to their states, which award Community Prevention Grants Program funds through a competitive process. Programs may be funded in 12-month increments for up to 3 years.

3) Juvenile Accountability Incentive

This program has been created to provide States, units of local government, and Indian Tribes as defined by Section 102 of the Federally Recognized Indian Tribe List Act of 1994, with funds to develop programs to strengthen and promote greater accountability in the juvenile justice system.

Additional Information:

- The program consists of 17 focus areas that focus on developing, implementing, and administering graduated sanctions for juvenile offenders as well as building, expanding, renovating or operating temporary or permanent juvenile correction, detention, or corrections facilities.
- The program also looks to hiring juvenile court judges, probation officers, and court-appointed defenders and special advocates, and funding pretrial services including mental health screening and assessment for juvenile offenders, to promote the effective and expeditious administration of the juvenile justice system.

Eligibility:

- Each State and territory (except Palau) is eligible to receive an allocation and award of funds for State and units of local government if the Governor certifies, consistent with guidelines established by the Attorney General.

4) Juvenile Mentoring Program

- The program aims to provide funding to state, local, community, and national organizations to propose the enhancement or expansion of initiatives that will assist in the development and maturity of community programs to provide mentoring services to high-risk populations that are underserved due to location, shortage of mentors, special physical or mental challenges of the targeted population, or other analogous situations identified by the community in need of mentoring services.

Additional Information:

- National Mentoring Programs provides support to national organizations to enhance or expand mentoring initiatives to assist in the development and continued growth of community programs.
- These programs provide mentoring services to high-risk populations that are underserved due to location, shortage of mentors, special physical or mental challenges of the targeted population, or other related situations identified by the community in need of mentoring services.

Eligibility:

- To be eligible for an Award under the Juvenile Mentoring Program, an applicant must respond to legislative requirements contained in Section 261 (a) and (b) of the JJDP Act, as amended as well as specific program guidelines issued by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP);
- Also one must be consistent with the objectives and priorities of OJJDP; provide for proper program administration, evaluation, and fiscal reporting; demonstrate, in the overall quality of the proposal, that the program is technically sound and will achieve the required program objectives at the highest possible level; and respond to clear and documentable needs.

5) Enforcing Underage Drinking Laws Program

- The EUDL Discretionary Program supports and enhances states' and local jurisdictions' efforts to prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors and the purchase and consumption of alcoholic beverages by minors. (For the purpose of this solicitation, "minors" are defined as individuals under the age of 21.)

Additional Information:

- Activities under the EUDL Program may include statewide task forces of state and local law enforcement and prosecutorial agencies to target establishments suspected of a pattern of violations of state laws governing the sale and consumption of alcohol by minors.
- It will also include public advertising programs to educate establishments about statutory prohibitions and sanctions and innovative programs to prevent and combat underage drinking.

Eligibility:

- To receive a Block Grant, Governors and the Mayor of the District of Columbia designated an agency to serve as the point of contact to apply for, receive, and administer the targeted grant funds. The designated State agencies may apply to receive a Discretionary Grant.

State Section I

New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services

The Division of Criminal Justice Services is a multi-function criminal justice support agency with a variety of responsibilities, including collection and analysis of statewide crime data; operation of the DNA databank and criminal fingerprint files; administration of federal and state criminal justice funds; support of criminal justice-related agencies across the state; and administration of the state's Sex Offender Registry that allows anyone to research the status of an offender.

At DCJS, the core agency functions include criminal history checks, fingerprint operations, coordination of grant funds, providing timely information, public safety, law enforcement training, breathalyzer and speed enforcement equipment repair, accreditation of police departments and forensic laboratories, Uniform Crime Reporting, research, hosting criminal justice boards and commissions, providing information to criminal justice agencies and institutions, and hosting other criminal justice agencies.

1) Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Program

- New York's Delinquency Prevention Program focuses on the risk and protective factors shown to be related to juvenile delinquency. Using this approach, communities first identify the risk factors that contribute to their delinquency problems. Risk factors include: drug use in the home and the community; long-term unemployment in their areas; and poor academic achievement.

Additional Information:

- The program also focuses on truancy; lack of positive peer influence; lack of school or community involvement; and high levels of community or family violence. In assessing risk, communities consider a range of family, peer, school, and community factors that foster delinquency.
- Prevention strategies succeed when they are positive in orientation and comprehensive in scope. Successful community strategies create opportunities for healthy physical, social, and mental development of juveniles. Programs consider the influence of family, peer group, school, and the community on a child's development.

Eligibility:

- New York State counties and municipalities are eligible to apply.

City Section I

New York City Center for Economic Development

The Center for Economic Opportunity (CEO) was established by Mayor Bloomberg on December 18, 2006 to implement innovative ways to reduce poverty in New York City. The CEO works with City agencies to design and implement evidence-based initiatives aimed at poverty reduction, and manages an Innovation Fund through which it provides City agencies annual funding to implement such initiatives.

1) Opportunity NY

- Opportunity NYC is the first conditional cash transfer (CCT) initiative to be implemented in the United States. CCT programs provide monetary incentives to households living in poverty when they complete activities aimed at increasing human capital development and breaking the cycle of poverty. As an initiative, Opportunity NY consists of three programs that apply specifically to middle to low income families and students.

Program Information:

1) The Family Rewards Program

- The program offers monetary incentives to low-income families for successfully completing targeted activities in education, health, and employment and training domains. The payments are significant and together have the potential to raise family income by an estimated 25-30 percent. As such, the payments function as an income supplement to immediately reduce economic hardship. Moreover, this initiative aims to promote access to, and utilization of, existing family support resources.

Additional Information:

- Monetary rewards are awarded bi-monthly to participating households that meet specific targets for children's education, family preventive healthcare practices, and parents' workforce efforts.
- Incentive payments range from $25 for attending parent-teacher conferences and $600 to high school students for passing a regents exam to $100 for a preventive health screening and $150 a month for maintaining fulltime employment.
- Funding is awarded through a coupon booked that allows for teachers to sign each coupon to be sent into Opportunity NYC for a direct deposit into the families safe account.

2) Work Rewards Program

- The program offers incentives to adults living in subsidized housing. The program will target Section 8 voucher recipients. Additionally, the program relies heavily on the paring of CBOs with the Federal Family Self-Sufficiency program, which increases work participation among residents in subsidized housing by providing them with savings escrow accounts.

Additional Information:

- The program tests two different strategies:
 - 1) The impact of an enriched FSS model;
 - 2) Immediate monetary incentives for workforce and training activities on Section 8 voucher holders.

3) SPARK Program

- The SPARK program is the most educationally driven program offered through Opportunity NYC. The program works to improve the academic achievement of participating students and create a lasting connection between them and their own academic success. The success of this program is gauged on Predictive Assessments, which are low stake exams.

Additional Information:

- This is a two-year program that 59 schools participate in across New York City.
- Students can earn up to $dollar in fourth grade and $500 in seventh grade based on the incentives they complete.

Eligibility:

Most, if not all, families become involved with the program through recognition of the community based organization (CBO) that is closest to them). Each of these have been listed below for the families to reach out to.
